

Methadone versus Suboxone for Treating Opioid Addiction – Dr. B

Jeffrey E. Hansen, Ph.D.
Center for Connected Living, LLC

Methadone vs Suboxone

When we discuss Methadone vs Suboxone for the purpose of Heroin treatment and maintenance, which is better?

Dr. B discusses this in-depth! Join him in his mission of changing the perception of addiction recovery together by subscribing:

<https://youtube.com/drbadddictionrecov>

Methadone has been used for Heroin treatment a lot longer than Suboxone. The main difference between the two is that Methadone is a full Opiate agonist while Suboxone is an agonist-antagonist.

Please click the link below to watch this informative video:

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ywl3HMMEhvo&ab_channel=Dr.BAddictionRecovery

